

A problem is NP-complete if it can only be solved by algorithms that run in exponential time.

No polynomial time algorithms are known to exist for any NP-complete problems

It is very unlikely that polynomial time algorithms should indeed exist.

No one has been able to disprove the possibility that polynomial time algorithms could exist